SAVING A TREASURE »

You might think he stood out as an oddity. There were some harsh moments. The knives. Um, the vocab. But for many CVHS alumni, Roger Panciera represents a kick-arse warranty on veterinary pathology education. Now, the idea of safeguarding landmark works of art at wartime is not unprecedented and one of ours is embattled. RJP remains in Mercy Hospital, OKC, Room 427 awaiting transfer release to a rehabilitation facility.

The patient is restless.

Anyone and everyone who can visit, please do so during the next 10-12 days. You may request a wheel chair for a ward outing, window viewing or lobby visit to break up the dull bedside routine. If you cannot visit in person, Dr. Panciera now has a mobile phone contact at 405-385-2902.

An aura surrounds the adventures of this CVHS Monument Man. There's nothing humdrum about the aspect of his work. The significance of his teaching isn't lost on his students even to this day. You can be a Fixer today by visiting even briefly. Think of it as a rescue effort for the med-staff as well!

It's go time.

OVMA - TULSA »

Orange is in the forecast for Tulsa January 28 - 30, at the Doubletree Hotel and Cox Business Center, 100 Civic Drive. Visit the CVHS booth #75 to receive your Pistol Pete Cowboy, meet your Advancement Team and Dean Sander and register for door prizes. I'll be there with all the swag.

It's a New Friday.

Resolutions can be realized: 2016 is the year to engage your full potential! Try something new. Get-it-done. It's the year to be a tour de force in helping CVHS be fiscally fit.

GIVE and BE change.
